All images taken with a smart phone have metadata or exif data attached It should be common practice to switch Wi-Fi, Bluetooth and all extra features of your phone off when not in use.. I know for Mac there are some good apps called little snitch and micro snitch Little snitch monitors all inbound and outbound traffic and asks for permission.. Shell out the 5 bucks and it will pay off in the long run Something to the effect of 20% of 'free vpn' services weren't even VPNs and were selling data.

If you want to check it out for yourself download a metadata reader of exif reader and see how scary it is.. You will be shocked by the amount of programs like Microsoft word that try to send your data.. Micro snitch warns you every time your microphone and camera is turned on No script is a good add on for firefox to stop scripts you do not want executing on your computer.. In the future if you have to send a picture to somebody download a exif remover and run the picture through it. Panasonic Unified Pc Maintenance Console Minecraft
